Refugee Action Team Toolkit

Welcome

To The JRS Action Team Toolkit

At a time when more than 82 million people have been forced to flee their homes around the world, understanding of their plight and support for their needs is diminishing in too many places. We can make a difference.

A JRS Refugee Action Team is a group of individuals dedicated to organizing their own community to support displaced people around the world by raising awareness, advocating, fundraising, and organizing other programming centered around refugees. These teams are diverse in their membership and scope. You can create an Action Team with any group of people interested in promoting a greater understanding of and support for the displaced. This can be at a school, on a college campus, in a parish, or elsewhere in your community.

This toolkit will provide you with guidelines, suggestions, and resources to help you launch your Action Team and ensure that it is successful!

On behalf of those we serve, we sincerely thank you for advocating for the rights of the vulnerable. We look forward to forming a partnership that will help build welcoming and supportive communities in the U.S. while changing the lives of many around the world.

If you have any thoughts, comments, or questions regarding this toolkit, please contact outreach@jrsusa.org or visit www.jrsusa.org/take-action. Thank you again!

Jesuit Refugee Service

An Overview

Jesuit Refugee Service (JRS) is an international Catholic non-governmental organization founded in 1980 as a work of the Society of Jesus. Our mission is to accompany, serve, and advocate for the rights of refugees and other forcibly displaced persons.

JRS is now present in more than 50 countries, addressing the educational, health, social, and emergency needs of refugees and other forcibly displaced persons. Our services are available to refugees and displaced persons regardless of their race, ethnic origin, or religious beliefs.

To get you started, the following is a list capturing some of JRS's programs serving refugees and other forcibly displaced persons across the globe. Familiarize yourself with the many ways in which JRS works to make a difference.

JRS Services Throughout the Globe

JRS programs start with sharing the journeys of forcibly displaced people as the best way to understand their aspirations and rekindle their hope. Programs are framed by reconciliation rooted in justice and dialogue among diverse cultures and religions. JRS engages in an integrated approach to service, encompassing the healing brought by accompaniment, the hope nurtured by education, and the dignity given by work.

EDUCATION: Education is at the heart of JRS's work in most regions, comprising a wide range of services involving formal and informal instruction. This encompasses pre-school, primary, secondary, tertiary, special, distance, and vocational education as well as life-skills education, adult literacy, computer and language classes, and education for peace and reconciliation.

LIVELIHOODS: JRS seeks to promote self-sufficiency by helping refugees access employment and land, providing technical training and assistance, and facilitating the establishment of small businesses by making available funds, grants, and loans in addition to tools and other resources.

RECONCILIATION: In a spirit of welcome and hospitality, JRS works to build a communal expression of social cohesion and reconciliation through its programs supporting forcibly displaced populations.

EMERGENCY RELIEF: In some parts of the world, JRS is involved in the distribution of food and non-food items. These items include mattresses, blankets, clothes, medical referrals and provisions, seeds, tools, and money for transport. JRS also distributes tents in refugee camps, renovates buildings in post-conflict situations, and helps refugees find accommodations in urban areas.

ADVOCACY: A vital part of JRS's mission is to defend the rights of refugees and migrants throughout the world. In the United States, JRS/USA advocates for just and generous policies and programs that benefit victims of forced displacement, so people made vulnerable by exile can receive support and protection, and so a durable solution to their plight can be achieved.

JRS Domestic Programs: Detention Chaplaincy & Binational Border Response Programs

The JRS/USA chaplaincy programs provide pastoral and religious assistance to meet the needs of non-citizens detained by the Department of Homeland Security. The program operates in five U.S. federal detention centers located in Florida, Texas, Arizona, and New York. We provide comfort and accompaniment to detainees by offering a range of emotional and spiritual support for people of all faiths at an extremely stressful and difficult time.

JRS/USA and JRS Mexico launched a new program to respond to the needs of refugees, asylum seekers, and displaced people at our shared border. The program, called Caminar Contigo, will aim to reduce suffering, improve mental health and psychosocial wellbeing, and to decrease violations to the legal rights for refugees, asylum seekers, and other displaced people in the Ciudad Juarez and El Paso region

Salma Khalil's Story

UNHCR reports that 50% of refugee girls in secondary school may not return when their classrooms open after COVID-19. Nearly the same percentage of all refugee school age children are out of school. It's never been more critical to protect refugee girls and women, and to expand and maintain learning opportunities across JRS.

Born in D'Njamena, Chad, and raised in Germany and Nigeria, Salma Khalil is a remarkable artist whose media include photography, illustration, and graphic design imbued with traditions of her birthplace. Her fire is fueled by a love to connect self-expression, teaching, and humanitarianism.

A decade ago, Khalil herself was displaced due to conflict in Chad. Before she was displaced, she'd been content with artistic projects, a home, a family, and loving neighbors — then her world exploded in February 2008.

"We heard the shells that fell here and there, behind the river and they told us that the women and children had to leave. I didn't want to go but they forced me. We arrived in Kousséri [Cameroon] around two in the morning," she recounts. "On the way we had to be careful," she says, "because there was a combat situation, cartridges, wounded people, [and] corpses. It was really traumatizing."

In 2020, Khalil connected with JRS Chad and Entreculturas on a new idea to help others displaced girls process their own traumas: She led a group of girls in creating an illustrated children's story about the reality of refugee girls across her country.

"The workshops have had a remarkable impact in and of themselves, as they have enabled the girls to understand the role of women in society," Khalil says.

She was able to identify girls who already understood the role of women through education and which was passed on by the strongest role models: their mothers.

As the workshop progressed, we developed tales in which the heroine was a girl, and they immediately claimed that the village can be led by a woman. They all collectively agreed: women are the ones who truly make the world move.

"War is a truly terrible thing... During childhood, it can be very traumatic and destabilizing, but these girls have recovered with responsibility and courage in their work and success."

What You Can Do

To Help Refugees

Around the world, millions of men, women, and children have been forced to flee their homes to escape persecution, violence, conflict, or human rights abuses. It's a crisis that has both immediate and challenging implications for the future. With such urgency, JRS is pleased to work with you to make a real difference in response to this crisis. Together, we can help displaced people overcome the trauma that they have experienced and build a constructive future for themselves, their communities, their countries, and the world.

Local groups in the U.S. can play an important role in generating support for displaced people by:

- Building positive awareness that the individuals and families who have made the difficult decision to flee their homes are just like us. They are children, mothers, fathers, sisters, and brothers with hopes and dreams of contributing to their own and their communities' well-being. Action Teams work to shift the tone of the discussion within the U.S. to one of support for refugees.
- Advocating for policies that are welcoming to displaced people in the U.S. Action Teams encourage policymakers to make the U.S. a beacon of hope and freedom that supports refugees around the world.
- Hosting fundraisers that provide an opportunity for Action Teams to contribute towards JRS-run programs helping displaced people around the world rebuild their lives.

How to Start

A JRS Refugee Action Team

GETTING STARTED

Start off by finding a core group of 3-5 committed people. Then try to expand to 10 or more members. You can do so by reaching out to friends or other contacts you think might be interested, speaking to groups that you are currently involved with who are willing to listen, and setting up information tables in public spaces (such as your student union, parish vestibule, school cafeteria, local supermarket, or town square). Post flyers, pass out handouts, utilize your social media, and hold information sessions to spread the word and attract members. Make sure to be inclusive and open minded. Diversity broadens ideas! Always keep a list of interested prospects that includes their contact information (Name, Phone, Email) and contact them shortly after with a notification of when your team will meet next.

CONNECT YOUR TEAM WITH JRS

Next, register your Refugee Action Team with JRS by emailing the JRS Outreach Coordinator at outreach@jrsusa.org. Please provide your contact information and location. Once you register your Refugee Action Team, you'll receive email updates, personal support from the JRS/USA team, and opportunities to work with other teams nationwide.

You can also invite a JRS representative to speak to your school, community, or parish about current refugee issues, JRS's experience of working with the forcibly displaced, and effective ways to promote positive social change for our vulnerable brothers and sisters. Contact the JRS Outreach Coordinator to request a speaker and we will do our best to accommodate your request.

CREATE YOUR OWN MISSION STATEMENT

Work as a team to create a 1-3 sentence mission statement. Your mission statement should reflect the JRS mission to "accompany, serve, and advocate for the rights of refugees and other forcibly displaced persons." Make sure it answers the following: Why was the group created? What does it hope to achieve? Keep it short and sweet, using informative and positive phrasing.

FORMALIZE YOUR ACTION TEAM

Officially establish your Action Team within the context of your location. (For example, if your Action Team is located in a school, make sure that your school's administration recognizes it as a club.) This may require informing a social committee, a pastor or pastoral associate, a school administrator, a campus minister, or a community leader. Be sure to know the rules: What is needed to start and maintain your team? What are your group's limitations in terms of fundraising and outreach? Where can you meet? Additionally, consider what funds your group might need to sustain itself and how you can raise those funds. Find an advisor or local sponsor to help you if necessary.

GET ORGANIZED

The best way to get your team organized is to designate responsibilities to different members. Consider creating a group structure that can include President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, Events Chair, and Publicity Chair. Make a schedule with all meetings and events and be sure to send reminders to members through email or social media.

Advocate

With JRS

At JRS, advocacy involves empowering forcibly displaced people to claim the rights to which they are entitled, assisting them in exercising those rights, and supporting them by engaging others in promoting refugees' rights. This involves addressing the public perception of the forcibly displaced, lobbying for governmental and institutional action to address challenges that they face, and working towards sustainable and durable solutions. There are various advocacy opportunities that your team can pursue!

TAKE ACTION

As you start your JRS Refugee Action Team, be sure that you sign up for our action alerts at www.jrsusa.org/take-action/jrs-advocates. We send out emails periodically to encourage our advocates to take action around issues affecting the local and global refugee community.

HOST A LETTER WRITING CAMPAIGN

Speaking out on behalf of refugee rights is critical to the work of JRS. Groups can take action by sending a letter to their policymakers on a variety of issues: ensuring refugees have access to an education, protecting asylum seekers who come to the U.S., and providing sufficient humanitarian assistance to refugees in need.

Studies show hand-written letters are among the most powerful ways to reach members of Congress. Choose one of JRS/USA's current advocacy priorities and bring together friends, family, and community members to advocate for the displaced.

SCHEDULE AN IN-DISTRICT LOBBY VISIT

Face-to-face meetings with members of Congress and their staffers send a very powerful message and ensures that your voice is heard. Lobby visits can be done individually or in a group. Legislators will often not be able to meet with you due to their busy schedules, but a meeting with the right staff member can be just as influential.

- 1) Schedule a meeting by calling or emailing your Senators' and Representative's local offices. You should do this at least a week before you would like to meet. Be persistent! Contact the office until you have agreed upon a date and time. Be sure to ask about space limitations so that you can organize an appropriately sized group (normally around 2-3 members of your team). You can find your elected officials' contact information online by entering your home address at www.senate.gov and www.house.gov.
- 2) Prepare for your meeting by practicing your message and gathering relevant information. If you would like to organize your thoughts and discuss key issues for the meeting, please contact the JRS Outreach Coordinator at outreach@jrsusa.org.
- 3) At the meeting, exchange contact information and leave relevant materials for the legislator and/or staffer to become more engaged and familiar with this issue. As a constituent, your position matters; you do not have to be an expert. You will rarely be asked detailed questions, but if you cannot answer anything simply promise to find more information and send it via email.
- 4) Follow-up with the staff that you met by sending an email restating your message, providing any additional information that you promised, and thanking them for their time.
- 5) Please let JRS/USA know how your meeting went! Your in-district visits are important to our advocacy efforts, and the information that you provide helps us send a stronger message from our office in Washington, D.C.

PARTICIPATE IN JRS/USA'S ADVOCACY DAY

JRS/USA hosts an annual Advocacy Day in Washington D.C. Look out for an invitation to your Action Team to join us. On Advocacy Day, JRS supporters come together to advocate for the rights of refugees and other forcibly displaced people on Capitol Hill. JRS/USA organizes meetings with key appropriations and foreign policy legislators who need to hear from their constituents about the importance of U.S. leadership on refugee issues. Participants meet with these legislators' offices to discuss topics such as the importance of refugee resettlement, funding for overseas humanitarian assistance programs, and access to education for refugees.

Host an Event or Activity

Events can support engagement in awareness-raising, advocacy, or fundraising. They are effective ways to get your community involved with your action efforts. Schools, parishes, and communities across the nation have utilized creative methods to support the refugees JRS serves worldwide.

The sky is the limit for creative forms of support! Staff at JRS/USA are always available to help you as you organize an event to raise awareness, fundraise, or promote advocacy. Your efforts will go far and wide to help refugees across the world.

Following these 8 steps can help your event be as successful as possible.

STEP 1: ESTABLISHING GOALS

What is the purpose of your event? What goals are you trying to achieve? Outlining your purpose and goals will enable you to determine what details need to go into the event.

STEP 2: PICKING AN ACTIVITY

Some event ideas include: bake sale, pancake breakfast, a walk or march, a form of “a-thon” event, benefit concert, sporting tournament, movie screening, or a panel discussion.

STEP 3: FINDING PARTNERS

If possible, find partners to co-host events and increase publicity. Aim for partners that can help you achieve your goals and provide support for the event.

STEP 4: LOGISTICS

Choose a date, location, and time for the event. Make sure you schedule far enough in advance. Once you figure out the details, register your event with JRS by emailing outreach@jrsusa.org so that JRS/USA is aware of your event and available to help in any way.

STEP 5: ORGANIZE YOUR EVENT

What is needed to make your event happen? Clarify the tasks needed to carry out your event. Then recruit volunteers, give them assignments, secure supplies, etc.

STEP 6: ADVERTISE

Post on social media, make flyers and posters, talk to friends, and make announcements. Ask volunteers to personally invite their friends and family. Wherever possible, make sure to tag or acknowledge JRS/USA in some shape or form. We want to be active in your efforts!

STEP 7: DAY OF EVENT

At the event, set up a table for participants to learn more about the refugees JRS/USA serves. For those interested in receiving updates from JRS, have them fill out a sign-up sheet so they can be placed on JRS/USA's mailing list.

Make sure there is a way to facilitate collection of money and checks, in case people wish to donate to the cause. Keep track of a donor's name and address, so you can send a thank you card or email after the event.

Taking pictures can also be a good way to advertise your team's efforts in the future. If you do take pictures, send them to us! We would love to see your accomplishments. You can also tag us on social media (Twitter: @jrsusa; Facebook: /JRSUSA; and Instagram: @jrsusa_photos).

STEP 8: WRAP-UP

Make sure to thank your partners and volunteers. Following the event, contact JRS/USA and let us know how it went. Send us any new contacts and pictures you may have. For more information on handling donations, follow this link: www.jrsusa.org/donate.

EXTRA: INCLUDE A DIGITAL COMPONENT

Broaden your support by adding a digital component to your event. Contact fundraising@jrsusa.org to set up a personal fundraising page online that you can customize and share with fellow students, faculty, parishioners, parents and alumni.

A fun way to boost success is to add a competitive spirit: create a fundraising challenge among classes or students vs. faculty. JRS can help with ideas and prizes.

Reflect and Pray

Prayer and reflection can be powerful ways to engage others, spiritually connect to the JRS mission, and build a network of solidarity with the forcibly displaced. Consider incorporating these approaches into your JRS Refugee Action Team and promoting prayer for refugees within your community. Use the examples below or create your own to connect your faith to your advocacy.

Sample Prayer for Refugees and Migrants

Lord, may we not wash our hands of our refugee brothers and sisters, and may you rain down upon them with all of the love and peace you were denied in your condemnation. Lord, may we be “struck and shocked by the plight” of our brothers and sisters worldwide and follow in the steps of Fr. Arrupe as we humbly bear the cross that awareness brings. Lord, we pray for vulnerable migrants that you may grant them strength and safety in their journeys, and we pray for open hearts to understand their desperate motivations. Lord, as we see your full humanity and suffering, may we see the full humanity and suffering of our displaced brothers and sisters.

Lord, we pray for women and children around the world. You asked us to weep for their oppression, and we pray that we may see their gifts, their strengths, and their plight as you do. Lord, as we see you wounded on the cross, help us to recognize the wounds of our brothers and sisters throughout the world. Let your spirit guide us to bring your light and hope to refugees and displaced people as we join together to build a world of love, justice, and peace for all.

Sample Intentions

Incorporating prayers for refugees during the general intercessions at Masses, or in other prayers, helps all parish and school members reflect on God’s call to love our brothers and sisters who are suffering around the world. Here are sample intentions:

- For all those who have been forced to flee their homes seeking a safe and dignified life...
- For all those living in refugee camps around the world...
- For advocates who work to defend the rights of refugees...
- For the education of all children caught in crisis and conflict...
- For strength that we may all participate in welcoming and defending the rights of refugees and displaced persons...

BECOME AWARE OF GOD'S PRESENCE

Take a few deep breaths. It's the same air that we all breathe - from the refugee on the road to those of us in the comfort of our home. It's the breath of the Spirit that gives life to each and every one of us. God is present.

For some, God may feel absent. Continue to explore this feeling of absence. Where is it especially felt? Where's the space that God needs to fill?

REVIEW

Take a moment to gather the information you know about a refugee situation or crisis. Where is it happening? Who is being affected? Where are they going? How are they being welcomed?

Review this information. Acknowledge what may be missing. Allow this to inform your next step.

PAY ATTENTION

As you review the information, what strikes you? What do you keep returning to? How does it make you feel? Are you angry? Upset? Saddened? Inspired to make a change?

Sit with that feeling and pay attention. What you're feeling is real.

CHOOSE ONE FEATURE AND PRAY FROM IT

By this point, you may have identified one thing—a thought, an image, or a feeling—that you can't leave behind. It's something that sticks with you. Pray from it.

How can you approach it? Is there something you can do at home? Or are you being called forward to take action?

LOOK FORWARD TO TOMORROW

Carry that thought, image, or feeling to the next day. How will it form tomorrow? What will you do differently? Move away from indifference and allow this prayer to become inspired action on behalf of refugees and the forcibly displaced.

CLOSING PRAYER:

God of all people,

We pray that we may accompany those on the road,
Walking in solidarity with those forced from their homes.

May we serve them humbly, recognizing not the cost,
But freely giving from what we have.

Remove all fear and allow us to become a voice crying out in the desert,
Proclaiming the good news and advocating on behalf of all those forcibly displaced.

May we follow your example in being a friend to the excluded and a ready defender in their time of need.

Please keep us united as a family, brought together in faith, hope, and love.

Amen

Raise Funds

For Refugees

Giving children the hope and stability that regular schooling provides, making sure the basic household needs of refugees are met, and helping displaced people work through the trauma they've experienced all require funding. Your group can make a real difference in people's lives by providing financial support for some of the more than 811,000 individuals JRS serves worldwide.

Below you will find some ideas to motivate your community to donate and fundraise for refugees. Feel free to get creative and come up with your own initiatives!

SET UP A PERSONAL FUNDRAISING PAGE

Contact fundraising@jrsusa.org to set up a personal fundraising page online that you can customize to share with fellow students, faculty, parents, alumni, parishioners and community members. Post your fundraising page on your social media to get the word out!

FUNDRAISING CHALLENGE

More entertaining ways to fundraise include charity basketball games, "dance-a-thons" (or other "a-thon" events), and community wide competitions between different groups (like classes) to reach the most donations. Reach out to JRS for help with ideas and prizes.

INCORPORATE SALES AND BUSINESSES

You can raise donations by hosting a bake sale or yard sale and committing your profits to JRS. You can also reach out to local businesses or religious organizations and encourage them to match your donations.

SUPPORT OUR RESPONSE TO COVID-19

COVID -19 has already caused so much destruction and disruption. It does not know borders. It does not distinguish between those who live where they were born and those who have been forced to flee their homes. We are in this together. Our future is shared.

Though many of us have been confined to our homes, we must act to help save that future. As Pope Francis said in his Easter message, "this is not a time for indifference." We must act to support all who need us, as we indeed need them.

Here are some ways your gift can support our response:

- $35 provides a family of 4 with a food basket
- $50 provides 5 families with hygiene kits
- $100 provides fabric and elastic for refugees to make 150 masks for their community
- $250 buys 25 radios for an entire classroom to learn their lessons through radio programming
- $500 covers PPE for more than 40 JRS staff to continue their work

SOCIAL MEDIA

Promoting a positive understanding of refugees and other displaced people is a critical need today. Social media platforms can play a key role in awareness-raising, advocacy, and fundraising.

MEDIA OUTREACH

Engaging your local media outlets is one of the most effective ways to spread the word about upcoming events, desired advocacy actions, and to inform the masses about refugee issues. Contact your local news stations and request more coverage of humanitarian concerns worldwide. Ask your newspaper or TV station to feature an article on refugee issues.

You can also submit your own writing to advocate for refugees in the press. Local newspapers often accept opinion submissions (Op-Eds) and Letters to the Editors. Guidelines for these submissions can usually be found online on the newspaper's website.

- Op-Eds are typically 600-750 words in length. They express your view on a current situation and include a specific call to action. When writing an Op-Ed, be aware that the average reader may not be familiar with your issue, so make sure to fill in the blanks and give background information. Make your point clear.

- A Letter to the Editor is typically around 100-200 words in length. It references a story, column, or comment that appeared in the newspaper. Your letter should make a new point or counterpoint to a certain piece and should conclude with a suggested action.

(See pages 12 and 14 for examples)

On International Women's Day, Let's Remember Refugee Girls

By: Giulia McPherson, Opinion Contributor

Today marks International Women's Day, an opportunity to highlight the achievements of women and girls around the world, and the challenges they still face in reaching their potential. As the appropriations season kicks off, Congress must prioritize funding for education programs that reach the most vulnerable – including refugee girls.

This includes girls like Mireille Twayigira, who fled Rwanda with her family when she was just two years old and journeyed for six years from country to country before arriving at Dzaleka refugee camp in Malawi. There, Mireille became a student in one of Jesuit Refugee Service's education programs and dedicated herself to her studies, eventually graduating from secondary school among the top three female students in the country. She went on to defy odds, continue her education, and became a medical doctor in 2016.

Unfortunately, Mireille is the exception. For millions of refugee girls, education is out of reach. In countries affected by conflict, girls are nearly three times more likely to be out of school than boys.¹ The challenge becomes even greater when girls try to transition from primary to secondary school. In fact, refugee girls are only half as likely to be enrolled in secondary school as boys.² Secondary education is so important to financially sustain refugee families. Girls with a secondary education go on to earn almost twice as much as girls with no education at all.³

For the past two years, the administration has proposed significant cuts – up to 30 percent – in foreign aid spending, while at the same time reducing the number of refugees admitted to the United States. Fortunately, Congress reversed these cuts and recently approved $800 million in sustained funding for international basic education in the FY19 Federal Budget.⁴ As Congress prepares to receive the President's FY20 Budget Request, we must continue to prioritize these life-changing programs and continue to invest in U.S. foreign assistance efforts that tackle barriers to girls' education so they can thrive no matter where they are.

We must invest in efforts like Education Cannot Wait, a new fund for education in emergencies that is serving children in 19 crisis-affected countries – half of whom are girls.⁵ We encourage the State Department and USAID to commit additional funding to this important initiative, which invests in strategies that are gender-responsive and increase access to education, promote safe and protective learning environments, and improve skills for teachers.

Currently, there are 3.7 million school-age refugee girls.⁶ Having survived harrowing journeys with their families to escape violence, conflict, and persecution, these girls face a number of challenges – particularly in their quest to go to school.

Many refugee boys and girls experience a gap in education due to their displacement, find themselves adjusting to a host country with a different language, educational system or curriculum, and struggle to manage the stresses that come with having to rebuild their lives. For refugee girls, these barriers are even higher.

Religious or traditional values often discourage girls' education, emphasize a girl's role in the home, and may lead to early marriage. Many schools also lack gender-appropriate accommodations including gender-segregated latrines or sanitary supplies.⁷ A nurturing, supportive learning environment that provides counseling services for students and monitors the progress of girls before they have the opportunity to drop out, is also in short supply.

We must all do our part to support girls as they try to achieve an education, particularly as they progress through primary school and transition to secondary education. A recent report released by Jesuit Refugee Service highlights critical interventions including providing scholarships that target girls, building facilities to ensure adequate menstrual health management, and developing tailored programs to support the empowerment of girls and address gender barriers.⁸

Last week, Mireille walked the halls of Congress to share her life story with policymakers and to make the case for investments in refugee education programs. Mireille's experience demonstrates the positive impact that investments in girls' education can have on individuals, families and larger communities. She is a living example of what can happen when these programs are prioritized. Like she told policymakers, "I used to look at myself as a girl with a tragic past. But I realized I was more than that, I was a girl with a story to tell."

We must keep girls' education at the forefront of our foreign assistance efforts. There are many more girls like Mireille waiting and hoping for their opportunity to thrive.

Sample Letter to the Editor

The September 4 article in The Washington Post, “A year after the death of Alan Kurdi, another Syrian child fights for survival” shared the story of 6-year-old Syrian refugee Shaima who was blinded after being caught in the crossfire and fled to Turkey with her family. Yet, impressively, she still has a strong desire to return to school.

According to the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, only 63 percent of refugee children have access to primary school, 24 percent to secondary school and very few have access to either pre-primary or tertiary education. For children in crisis situations, education is an absolute necessity. In the midst of destruction, violence, and instability, school is a place of learning and opportunity, a sanctuary for healing, and a haven of normalcy and hope for the future.

This year, UN member states will negotiate and finalize the UN Global Compact on Refugees to agree on policies and set forth commitments that can significantly improve the lives of refugee children by creating a better system for responsibility-sharing among nations and ensuring that education for refugees is a central concern. Support for the Compact and initiatives like Education Cannot Wait can provide an avenue towards quality, meaningful education for refugees around the globe. World leaders, including the U.S., must not forget Shaima and thousands of other children like her who are missing out on an education and the opportunity to forge a path forward for themselves and their families.

HOST A WALK A MILE IN MY SHOES REFUGEE AWARENESS EXERCISE

This awareness exercise is an opportunity for communities to pause and experience, if only vicariously and if only for a few moments, the frustrations, the disappointments, and the hopes that refugees around the world face. It is a structured event in which individuals, students, community groups, and their guests assume the role of refugees. They will encounter some typical activities that a refugee experiences by walking through 8 different stations, all with different themes.

Walk a Mile in My Shoes can take place in any common area, inside or outside, or in someone's home. The time period could range from 20-30 minutes per participant. Participants make their way from station to station on their own or in groups of 4-6 people. Volunteers help set-up for the event, staff the stations, and answer questions from participants. The following stations can be adjusted or altered to fit any context.

The stations outlined in the awareness exercise include:

- | | |

WRITE TO ANY REFUGEE

Any Refugee was founded in 2014 by JRS supporter William Scannell IV. The idea for Any Refugee came from a story William heard from his dad about how people used to be able to send letters addressed to Any Soldier. He took this idea and applied it to reaching out to refugee children, with the hope of sending them a message of support and comfort.

You can participate in Any Refugee by writing a postcard and sending it to the JRS/USA office. Your Refugee Action Team can also host a postcard-writing event to motivate others to take part! JRS/USA staff will then deliver the postcards to refugee children enrolled in JRS programs around the world. See the steps below or visit www.jrsusa.org/any-refugee for details.

How to Send a Postcard:

Step 1: Write One.

Write a postcard or draw a picture (or both!) with a message of hope, comfort, and love. Everyone needs to know that others are thinking of them and wishing them a better future. You can even add something personal from your own life.

A few important things to remember:

- You can keep the card simple. Sometimes just a short note and drawing can be perfect.
- Avoid references that are specific to one religion, culture, or nationality – aim for a message that will be well-received across any demographic.
- Avoid phrases like “Welcome to America.” The child receiving your card is living outside of the U.S.

Step 2: Send your postcard.

Feel free to bundle cards in a package. You do not need to pay for postage on every card.

Step 3: We deliver.

Your postcard will be distributed by the Jesuit Refugee Service to a refugee child enrolled in a JRS program.

The State of Global Displacement

Today, we are in the midst of one of the largest periods of global displacement since World War II. Men, women, and children around the world are forced to flee their homes in fear of violence, persecution, or human rights violations. It is important to remember that these refugees are diverse in their ethnicities, countries of origin, and needs. JRS aims to structure its education, psychosocial, and training programs to best support this vulnerable population in the ways that matter most. These displacement statistics from the UN Refugee Agency (UNHCR) highlight the experiences of refugees across the world.

REFUGEES WORLDWIDE

- More than 82 million individuals are forcibly displaced worldwide as a result of persecution, conflict, or generalized violence. 1 in 95 people is now forcibly displaced.
- This includes over 26 million refugees, 48 million internally displaced persons, and 4.1 million asylum seekers.
- Children below 18 years of age constitute 42% of the refugee population.

INTERNALLY DISPLACED PERSONS

- More than 48 million internally displaced persons (IDPs) have been uprooted from their homes because of war and violence but have not yet crossed an international border in search of shelter and safety.
- A massive 9.8 million of these IDPs were newly uprooted during 2020, equal to 26.776 people each day.

ORIGIN AND LOCATION OF REFUGEES

- Most refugees are from Syria (6.7 million), followed by Venezuela (4.0 million), Afghanistan (2.6 million), South Sudan (2.2 million), and Myanmar (1.1 million).
- The countries hosting the largest number of refugees are: Turkey (3.7 million); Colombia (1.7 million); Pakistan (1.4 million); Uganda (1.4 million); Germany (1.2 million).

LIVING CONDITIONS OF REFUGEES

- Refugees live in widely varying conditions, from well-established camps and centers to makeshift shelters or living in the open.
- More than half of all refugees live in urban areas.
- They all await one of three possible solutions: repatriation to their country of origin, integration in their host country, or resettlement in a third country.
- The average time spent as a refugee is estimated to be 17 years.

How to Host

A Successful Meeting

Now that you have an established Refugee Action Team, you should begin to hold regular, productive meetings to brainstorm projects and track your progress. Below is a suggested outline for hosting a successful meeting:

1. CHECK-IN

Allow time for socializing as you sign in members and gather the contact information of new members.

2. CELEBRATE SUCCESS

Highlight successful recent projects and recognize group members (consider creating a “Member of the Month” to recognize at this time).

3. DEBRIEF

Allow the secretary (notetaker) to give a brief recap of your last meeting. Take the time to review any events or activities you’ve organized since the last meeting.

4. CURRENT PROJECTS

Discuss what needs to be done to complete current projects. If the group is large, you can divide into sub-committees that focus on specific components of the project. If you use this method, consider providing some time for the sub-committees to meet and then come back together as a group to discuss further.

5. FUTURE PROJECTS

Discuss future projects you’d like to pursue. Gain input and ideas from members.

6. WRAP-UP

Announce the next meeting, review decisions made during the current meeting, and ensure everyone is aware of their assignments.

Tips:

- Make sure that your meetings are open to anyone interested in joining the Refugee Action Team.
- Allow for a variety of opinions by giving everyone in the room an opportunity to speak. If the group is not too large, it can be helpful on key points to go around the room asking each person to contribute so that everyone’s voice is heard.
- Consider creating a clear decision-making process to avoid conflicts.
- Consider bringing snacks to meetings for motivation.
